

On Saturday, May 6 at 10 am thanks to a grant from the Northwest Connecticut Arts Council the Warren Historical Society will host an Art's Heritage Program at the Academy.

The goal of the Arts Heritage Program is to engage and expose Warren's youth and their families to the inspirations of Warren artist, Eric Sloane. Sloane's landscapes featured fine details of barns and fields and his tool drawings referenced not only the implements that built those barns, but the very wood from which they were created.

Local artist, Albert Coffil will instruct home schooled, private schooled and non-Region 6 students with their parents as well as others in the community. Participants will then have the opportunity to create their own masterpiece in the style of Eric Sloane. All supplies will be provided as well inspiration from articles in the collection of the Warren Historical Society.
